Time-management strategy: Work a few days ahead of deadlines

Leadership: Our team does not have a designated leader, however, we work to keep each other accountable and informed about the tasks that must be completed. By all of us keeping track of this information it is less likely that something will be missed, we also split the many task evenly amongst the group members.

How do we hold each other accountable on expectations: During our meetings we discuss what still needs to be done and also what we have each completed. By having a constant communication channel the team knows what areas are lacking and due to the mutual respect with each other we have completed the expectations.
